

Today we have been learning about the Mars Perseverance mission.

In forest school we thought about what it must be like to explore an unknown land and how the people programming the robot have to write codes to give clear instructions.

